

Child Protection Registry

Written by Utah Child Protection Registry

Wednesday, 19 November 2008 17:00 - Last Updated Monday, 23 March 2009 15:17

The Utah Child Protection Registry was created on the idea that, just as millions of Americans have the choice to protect their home phone numbers from solicitors, they should also have the choice to protect their families from unwanted, adult-oriented advertisements.

Modeled after the National Do Not Call Registry, Utah established laws to protect e-mail addresses, mobile phone numbers (SMS), instant messenger IDs, and fax numbers from adult-oriented solicitations. These solicitations may include, but are not necessarily limited to: illegal drugs, alcohol, tobacco, pornography, and gambling. And like the do-not-call list, when you register your family addresses, you are removing your contact information from adult-oriented company and marketing solicitation lists.

This is a free, state administered service. For additional information and to register your household contact points today, visit www.kidsregistry.utah.gov .